

DRUM NATION FESTIVAL 2010

Hello Everyone,

I think many might say that last year proved to be a wise choice when moving our annual drum gathering from our home to the O'Hara's Mill Park. The turnout was fantastic and afterwards we received many emails, cards and phone calls expressing how much everyone enjoyed the festival and would definitely bring back friends the following year. If this is any indication to how this year will turn out, I'd say we are in for an even greater 2010 event.

The reason you are receiving this invitation is either we have spoken with you and you expressed an interest in attending or one of our committee members has seen what you do and thought you would be a great addition to the mix.

The Drum Nation committee looks for a unique mix of vendors who have something interesting to display to our attendees. There is no charge for a booth space, but we do ask in return that you provide a workshop or demonstration for free that would be of some interest to our visitors. This concept proved to be a win win situation last year and we have decided to continue with this format.

We ask that each vendor fill out the application attached with the details of your products or service and some information on the workshop you would like to teach or demonstrate that day. All applications will be carefully looked over to be sure each applicant fits with the theme of our event and for the uniqueness of their workshop. We add only a select few vendors, so be sure to return your application as soon as possible.

Please note: This is an outdoor event; you are required to bring your own tent or cover if you need one. There are many trees in the area that provide shade and you are welcome to set up in a shaded area with no cover, if you like. This is a very relaxed event and vendors are able to choose their own location around the parameter of the event. Teaching and demonstrating will be done from your booth and we will provide benches for everyone to sit on. Workshops should be about half hour to an hour long.

If you have any problems opening the application please let us know,
